TenneT is looking for an experienced communication consultant with a focus on external communication to support GON.

In this role, you will be responsible for the strategic positioning of TenneT Offshore. Your tasks include developing a stakeholder analysis and a strategic roadmap, as well as creating and implementing communication plans in close collaboration with internal stakeholders. You will also engage with external stakeholders to support offshore development in the Netherlands.

As a communications consultant, you will strengthen Operations Offshore's internal and external presence by creating content, organizing (online) events, leveraging digital platforms, and developing other communication tools. You will advise leadership on various topics and projects within this unit and represent TenneT in offshore working groups and organizations.

Since TenneT operates in the Netherlands, it's important that you understand Dutch, both spoken and written, and have a good grasp of Dutch culture. This will help you navigate the local stakeholder landscape and communicate effectively in our environment.

Collaboration is key in this role, and you thrive in a team environment. But you also know when to take the lead and work independently. You're creative, open-minded, and comfortable balancing multiple projects at once. And since TenneT operates in an international setting, fluency in English (spoken and written) is essential.

Where You'll Fit In

You'll be part of the Business Excellence team within GON while staying closely connected to the corporate communications team (within the Public Affairs and Communications Unit). This means you'll have the chance to shape TenneT's external positioning while also aligning with our overall communication strategies and media approach.

We welcome people from all backgrounds and experiences—as long as you're passionate about clear, effective communication and excited about making an impact in the energy transition, we'd love to hear from you!
